(New York World.)

Russian society has been greatly scandalized by recent gambling revelations among the highest aristocratic circles, scandals which have come to the ears of the czar and czarina, and which have caused the young ruler to take energetic steps to abolish them. take energetic steps to abolish them.
For some time past gambling for heavy stakes has been largely on the increase in St. Petersburg, and not only the men, but the women of society. New York, April I.—Henry Russell and Sid Yennie, alias Henry Ferguson, who claim to be speculator and salesman, respectively, have been arrested on suspicion of being converted with the men, but the women of society have been giving way to this practice. Years ago it used to be the case that high play was confined to some half dozen well known cliques, who met at private houses on stated evenings, but the evil has gradually so taken hold.

One most flagrant case occurred as short time ago, in which it came too light that a well known retired officer of the army, connected with the highest families in the land, was in the habit of indusing all the young most habit of inducing all the young menof his acquaintance with means to come to his house to engage in play with professional gamesters. Here they also met ladies selected for their socials charm and beauty, whose business it was to make the evening pass as agreeably as possible.

Incredible sums were lost at these gatherings, and incredible orgies usually ended them. Officers of one of the st. Petersburg crack Cossack regiments, were in the habit of meeting at this house, and so great were their losses that they had recourse to the regiment, all unds to meet them.

All went well for some time, but at last it transpired that the regimental bank was being drained; and the affair coming to the ears of General Kuropatkine, the minister of war, an inquiry was instituted, with the result that one general, one colonel and several subordinate officers were transported to Siberia for various terms. The matter came to the knowledge of the czar, who has now given orders the czar, who has now given orders to the prefect of the city to keep a careful watch on all suspected houses careful watch on all suspected houses; and to report personally to him. The czar and czarina have expressed their displeasure in a variety of ways.
